

HOLY TRANSFORMATION

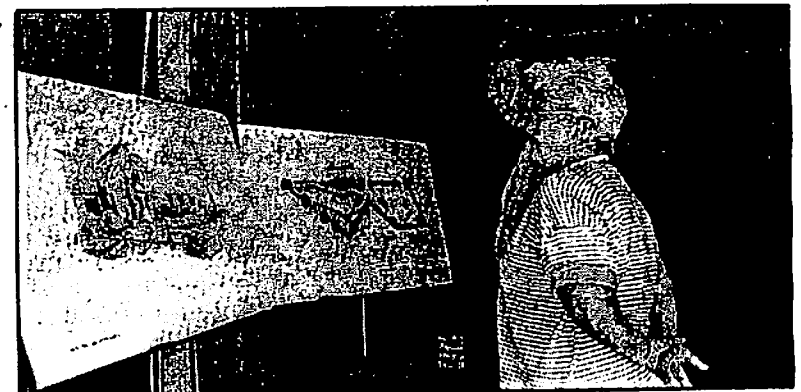

Staff photos/Ed Dutra

Circle of hope — A construction worker continues working on the transformation of the Old Holy Family Church into the Ellison Center for the Art during an open house Saturday.

Hat's off — You still need one of these to tour the facility.

In the plans — Martha and George Palfrey look over the finished plans for the center.

Under construction — The Ellison Center for the Arts opened its doors to visitors last Saturday, but only for a tour of the construction.